

CLRSearch.com is a Real Estate Search engine that provides a data rich environment to explore listings, foreclosures, community demographics, school information and other data relevant to the most important decision of your life. Our site provides:

- An easy to use interface to search listings and communities around the country.
- A detailed view of each listing, which leads consumers to the source broker or agent, for additional information about the property or to schedule a showing. Our listings feeds are imported daily to ensure the most up to date information possible.
- The ability to save listings or have new listings that match the user's saved search criteria emailed to them or provided by RSS feed. You can also share your favorite listings with friends and family through our social network integration tools such as Facebook Like and Send buttons and Google +1 functionality.
- Helpful interactive mapping features that allow users to create area maps populated with schools, shopping, libraries, parks and theaters to name a few.
- The ability to search and compare community demographic information on education, lifestyles, income, drive times, crime, growth and more.
- For Brokers and Agents, we've created a self-service Local Expert Advertising Platform that provides a cost effective way to leverage their hyper-local market.

With the emergence of the social media networks and other online tools for marketing real estate on the internet, we will continue to help educate real estate professionals on the latest trends. We are currently building a network of Facebook Pages in the largest markets around the country, and will continue to integrate new tools into CLRSearch.com to support our users. The real estate world is changing daily and we plan to change with it.